Monthly performance update

As at 31 January 2019

Overview

4D Infrastructure (4D) is a boutique asset manager investing in listed infrastructure companies across all four corners of the globe. Our investment objective is to identify quality infrastructure companies, trading at or below fair value with sustainable, growing earnings combined with sustainable, growing dividends. The 4D Global Infrastructure Fund ('the Fund') aims to outperform the OECD G7 Inflation Index + 5.5% p.a. over the medium to long term (before fees).

4D Global Infrastructure Fund Monthly performance update As at 31 January 2019

Portfolio performance review

The 4D Global Infrastructure Fund was up a net 7.52% (AUD) in January, out-performing the benchmark return of 0.62% (by 6.90%) and the FTSE 50/50 Infrastructure Index, which was up 4.1% (AUD) in January. This was despite a sizeable A$ headwind which was up 3.18% versus the US$ in January.

The portfolio benefited from overall market upside, with the out-performance relative to the market being driven by strong performance from Brazil as well as the US midstream sub-sector.

The strongest portfolio performer for January was Brazilian toll road operator CCR up 32.9%. This was driven by general positive sentiment towards Brazil's new government as well as sector specific news regarding concession extensions.

The weakest performer in January was China Resources Gas Group down 1.4% for the month, driven by concerns of a slowing Chinese economy and what this will mean for gas demand. We remain confident in the long-term domestic demand story.

Despite a slowing global macro environment, it remains in positive territory and supportive of our overweight to user pay assets which have a direct correlation to macro. However, we remain cautious of ongoing geo-political issues and have positioned accordingly.

Market review

Equity markets started 2019 in a far more positive fashion than they ended 2018, with much of the December 2018 market losses reversed. Both the S&P 500 and the broader MSCI World were up almost 8%, while EMs were also pretty chirpy up 8.7%. The US 10-year bond rallied modestly closing at a yield of 2.63% p.a., down 5bp over the month.

There were no new major, macro events that could explain the equity market rally with the usual suspects – US/China trade wars, potentially slowing global growth, the ongoing US government shutdown, Brexit and French protests – all bubbling away in January, remaining in play with no major signs of resolutions being reached.

As expected the US Federal Reserve left rates on hold, but recent rhetoric looks decidedly more dovish, suggesting the Fed's former position of 3-4 hikes in 2019 has found its way to the WPB. Numerous high-profile economists, the popular media and even President Trump had been vocal in their criticism of the 3-4 hike scenario, given a host of data suggesting a global economic slowdown was garnering speed. The term 'Fed Put' may now re-enter the vernacular – this refers to a Fed that eases monetary policy as asset prices come under pressure.

US December activity indicators remained at solid levels, although there was some weakening. The manufacturing ISM retraced more than expected to 54.1 (consensus(c): 57.5, previous(p): 58.8), while the composite non-manufacturing ISM also missed, falling to 57.6 (c: 58.5, p: 60.4). The unemployment rate rose to 3.9% (c: 3.7%, p: 3.7%). Average hourly earnings unexpectedly ticked up to 3.2% y/y (c: 3%, p: 3.2%). December core CPI rose 0.2% m/m as expected (p: +0.2%), holding the y/y at 2.2% as expected. Some US data releases were delayed by the US government shutdown.

Chinese data softened in December. The CPI retraced more than expected to 1.9% y/y (c: 2.1%, p: 2.2%), while Q4 GDP slowed to a post-GFC low of 6.4% y/y as expected (p: 6.5% y/y). European data continues to soften – the flash Eurozone manufacturing PMI for January missed, with a fall to 50.5 (c: 51.4, p: 51.4), while the composite PMI also fell to 50.7 (c: 51.4, p: 51.4). December CPI slowed more to 1.6% y/y as expected (p: 1.9%).

Outlook

We have a very positive outlook for global listed infrastructure (GLI) over the medium term. There are a number of powerful macro forces at play which we believe will continue to support the sector. There has been a huge underinvestment in infrastructure around the world over the past 30 years. As governments seek to redress this problem, public sector fiscal and debt constraints will limit their ability to respond, meaning there will be an ever-increasing need for private sector capital as part of the funding solution. In addition, the world's population is expected to grow by 53% by the end of this century, which will be accompanied by an emerging middle class, especially in Asia. These forces will compel new, improved and expanded infrastructure around the world. GLI's very attractive investment attributes will make it an important part of the financing solution to the world's infrastructure needs and, we believe, see it continue to grow and prosper over the longer term.
